

British Cycling Policy on Club Confined Time Trials in Scotland

British Cycling has an agreement with Scottish Cycling to allow 'club confined time trials' to be covered by the club's liability insurance as a training activity. 'Club confined time trials' should involve no more than 25 riders, cover a distance of no more than 25 miles and be confined to club members plus any invitees who are not members of any cycling club and who have been invited to participate with a view to joining that club.

This cover is provided as a benefit to clubs and officials, not to individual participants. Therefore individual participants are strongly urged to obtain an adequate level of personal liability insurance such as that provided by Silver or Gold membership of British Cycling.

Conditions

- For the purposes of 'club confined time trials', club members shall be defined as follows: -
 - where the club member is a British Cycling member, the host club must be that which appears uppermost on their British Cycling membership card.
 - where the club member is not a British Cycling member, the member must be a member of the host club exclusively and not be a member of any other cycling club.
- A rider may only participate in 'club confined time trials' of only one club in any calendar year.
- All clubs insured for 'club confined time trials' must be affiliated to Scottish Cycling.

Where any of these conditions are not met, the event is no longer considered to be a 'club confined time trial' and must therefore be registered with Scottish Cycling as an Open Time Trial for which the normal registration fees and levies are payable.

For 'club confined time trials' involving more than 25 riders a sliding scale of additional fees applies :

- 26 to 40 riders - additional £10 payable per event
- 41 to 60 riders - additional £15 payable per event
- 61 to 80 riders - additional £20 payable per event

Any additional fees being payable as a result of there being more than 25 riders in a 'club confined time trial' should be sent with an event registration form in advance of the event to Scottish Cycling prior to the 'club confined time trial'. Scottish Cycling will forward the additional fees to British Cycling headquarters.

Scottish Cycling, the body to which Scottish clubs are affiliated, is the governing body for cycle sport in Scotland and makes insurance arrangements on behalf of its members, affiliated clubs and event organisers through the British Cycling Federation. Details of member, club and event liability insurance are available at www.britishcycling.org.uk